Ross Parsons Centre of Commercial, Corporate and Taxation Law

The Ross Parsons Centre was launched in 2004 to build upon Sydney Law School's excellence in teaching and research in commercial, corporate and taxation law. The Centre engages in undergraduate and postgraduate courses, conferences and seminars; sponsoring visits from leading international and Australian academics; encouraging research and scholarship; and building links with other institutions with similar goals. The Ross Parsons Centre is named in honour of Professor Ross Parsons, Australia's foremost scholar in taxation, corporate and commercial law, and for many years, Professor of Law at the University of Sydney.
